Democrats Sweep State Monday

In Monday's State election the Democrats achieved victories evidently beyond their anticipation. Winning a United States Senate seat for the first time since 1911 and placing a Governor for the first time in 25 years, the party also succeeded in electing James Oliver to succeed Robert Hale, Republican, as Representative to Congress from the First District.

As County officials, only Sheriff James Lassiter and Treasurer Stuart Martin survived the Democrats' attack. Defeated for re-election were Republicans: Senators Norman Ferguson and Harold Pike, County Attorney David Hastings, and County Commissioner Earl Osgood. Representatives to the Legislature are evenly divided as to party, Democrats Cormier and Saunders being re-elected. There were no contests in the Clerk of Courts and two Register of Deeds positions.

In the referendum questions, Bethel and Oxford changed to favor the sale of beer and ale to take out.

State-wide totals gave: United States Senator—Edmund S. Muskie 171,942, Frederick G. Payne 112,178; and Governor—Clinton A. Clauson 145,619, Horace A. Hildreth 134,993. In the First Congressional District, Oliver had 54,630 votes and Hale 51,702.

COMMENTS FROM THE TOWN MANAGER'S OFFICE

There were 48 in attendance at the special town meeting held last Saturday afternoon. The article concerning the adoption of a zoning ordinance was acted on favorably and the ordinance is now in effect. The Selectmen have appointed the Town Manager as Building Inspector. Richard Davis, Clarence Rolfe, and Edmond Vachon have been appointed to the Board of Appeals, the associate member yet to be appointed.

It is the duty of the building inspector to carry out the articles of the ordinance. If an application for a permit is received and does not comply with the ordinance the building inspector has no choice but to turn it down. The applicant may then make application to the Board of Appeals for a hearing and they have the authority to either uphold or reverse the decision of the building inspector. Any person desiring a copy of the Zoning Ordinance may obtain one by calling at the town office.

The three articles concerning discontinuing of three abandoned roads, after some discussion were passed over. The question of whether to discontinue or to retain as a town way will always be debatable. The possibility of some interested person requesting the reopening of these abandoned roads is ever-present. An expenditure of several hundred or even a few thousand dollars is entirely possible. However two persons present at the meeting expressed themselves as interested in retaining the roads as a town way, but would make but little demand of the town to maintain them as such.

Work is proceeding very well on state aid construction. Excavation and fill have been completed. Placing the gravel base is now in progress. It is planned to place a coat of asphalt as soon as construction is completed.

Sincerely,
Harold L. Bean

MINOR DAMAGE REPORTED IN SUNDAY CAR TANGLE

Three cars and a pick-up truck were involved in an accident at the foot of the hill near Kozy Korner on the Bethel-Locke Mills road Sunday afternoon. Cars driven by William Field of Portland, Philip Croteau of Groveton, N. H., and Mrs. Clayton Crockett of Bethel and a truck driven by Clayton Crockett were in collisions which did not prevent leaving the scene under their own power. The only person injured was Clyde Crockett, five years old, who was thrown from the truck suffering bruises and a shaking up.

The vehicles were proceeding toward Bethel village when the cars driven by Field at the rear, and Croteau turned out to pass the Crocketts. Apparently the Field car struck the Croteau and Crockett cars and the truck, and the Croteau car also hit the truck. The Crockett truck was whirled by the impact and the little boy was thrown from the rear of the truck into bushes beside the road.

The Field car left the road and after tearing down some fence went 400 feet into the Chadbourne field at the left before stopping. Mr. Field appeared in the Norway Municipal Court this Thursday morning.

BETHEL HAS ZONING LAW —KEEPING ALL TOWN ROADS

At Bethel's special town meeting Saturday afternoon some 50 voters decided to accept the zoning ordinances as presented at previous open meetings and voted to pass over all articles relating to discontinuing unused portions of town roads at East Bethel, Bird Hill and Paradise Hill. Neither of these decisions was unexpected.

Speaking on the subject of discontinuing the roads were R. Ward Wallace, Philip Chamberlaine, Leslie Swan and Henry Wentleigh for the conservation and land owners interest. John Carter spoke briefly in outlining the town's reasons for submitting the proposal.

Two voters heard on explanation of the lumber operators apprehensions in event of approval of the articles, which include convenience in fire fighting access to their timber holdings and the fear of expense in acquiring rights of way if the present roads were discontinued.

In the balloting at the Community Room during the afternoon Burton Newton of West Bethel was elected selectman and assessor for the remainder of the term of the late Carroll Abbott.

THE HOPEFUL PESSIMIST

A broken, discouraged man went for a walk. He had lived through some of the most fateful years of history. He had seen his nation crumble from a world-power to a third rate satellite. He, himself, most zealous of patriots, had been forced to speak out against the leaders of his nation, and foretell their defeat.

Cursed by all as a traitor, Jeremiah felt alone and unable longer to bear the burden of his ministry. What was there left to live for? His nation was defeated, and unrepentant in its defeat. What more could God do? What hope was there?

As Jeremiah walked along, he stopped for a moment to watch a potter at work, beside the road. The potter took a lump of prepared clay, and placed it upon the spinning turn-table, propelled by a foot treadle. As the clay spun upon it, his skilled fingers guided its shape, so that it took form as a beautiful vase.

Then, just as it seemed finished, something went wrong. The vase buckled, and lost its shape, falling a shapeless mass.

Jeremiah watched to see the potter throw it away in disgust. But he did not. Patiently he picked up the lump of clay, picked out one or two imperfections, and began to remold it. The second dish was more beautiful than the first would have been.

Then the Word of the Lord came to him: "Cannot I do with you as this potter, O House of Israel?"

We need that reminder sometimes, do we not? There is a second chance.

COUNTRY FLAVOR

HANGING LAMPS

Some day a perceptive historian will write a history in terms of lamps and lanterns. It will begin with pioneer days when fireplaces and pitch pine knots furnished the light by which men and women with courage and dreams began a new era. It will describe the beginnings of coal oil vessels and the invention of lamps and wire-protected lanterns. It will tell about street lamps and old lamp lighters who gave us a string of golden-haloed beads in the darkness along village streets.

Whale oil lamps were used from the late 1700's to about 1800. Then a new product, petroleum, changed a lighting of a nation. It was a big event on Mountain View Farm when Father decided he could afford one of the big, handsome hanging lamps to attach to the ceiling over the eating table in the kitchen. It was around this table that boys and girls did their lessons read the Youth's Companion and Horatio Alger. It was very expensive, $6.85, but Father wanted his children to have every advantage for a good education.

The lamp hung on chains. It had a shingling brass bowl and a center draft burner that generated 85 candle light. The mail catalog was enthusiastic. "Fount and dome are beautifully decorated with hand-painted carnations. There are 20 cut-glass, sparkling pendants suspended from the dome band." Not quite so beautiful, perhaps, as the showy porcelain globe of the parlor lamp on which Aunt Maude had painted magnificent petunias.

The hanging lamp was an important addition. It gave a generous well-diffused light. Half a century ago boys and girls, men and women spent pleasant fall and winter evenings in the mellow glow. It has been a long trail upward for man since cave-dwelling days. The goal is still ahead; but along the way hanging lamps did their part to light men's minds.

Read John 15:12-17

Thou hast made known to me the ways of life; thou shalt make me full of joy with they countenance. (Acts 2:28).

THERE is an old saying: "It is easier to say a thing than to do it." A teacher often frightened his pupils with his stern looks. One morning at school he talked about Jesus' receiving little children brought to Him by their mothers.

The teacher was enthusiastic about his topic, and the children were very interested. At the conclusion a little girl raised her hand to ask: "Sir, how was Jesus' face when he talked to the little children?"

"He spoke very kindly to them with a beautiful smile on his face," the teacher answered. Then he suddenly realized that he himself was omitting something which he ought to do in dealing with children.

He began to think of others like himself in responsible positions who do not actually show either in their faces or in their lives the love of which they speak. From that day on he was completely changed.

PRAYER: O merciful Father, help us to love one another as Thou hast loved us. Enable us to live for things that make for peace. Cleanse our hearts and purify our souls. In the name of the Prince of Peace, Jesus Christ, our Saviour. Amen.

THE AMERICAN WAY

MAKING OUR CHILDREN LITTLE SOCIALISTS

by John T. Flynn

(EDITOR'S NOTE: John T. Flynn is a noted author, lecturer, and radio commentator.)

Have you a little socialist in your home? That sounds like a silly question, but it's one that many parents are asking themselves today. They are answering it, too, and to their horror the answer is often in the affirmative. The first sputnik of a year ago supposedly awakened us to our education system's deficiencies. But it needed no sputniks to reveal to many troubled parents that something cockeyed has been going on in our schools for a long time.

For instance, a country-wide survey made among 5,000 high-school students showed that 60 percent believe the profit motive can be killed off without hurting the American system. Another survey asked the kids: "Who contributes most toward improved living standards—business, government, or union leaders?" Government and union leaders got first and second place. Business ran a poor third.

In other words, great numbers of high-school students—in many places a majority—emerge from our public high schools with a philosophy of life bearing a closer resemblance to European socialism or even Russian communism — than to traditional American thinking.

With the schools open again, it's a good time to ask how these kids got this way. Of course, many influences are brought to bear on them during their school years. But one of the most important—perhaps the most important—are the textbooks from which they are taught the subjects of history, social science, government and economics.

Let's get one thing straight right away. These books do not teach communism — they do not even teach socialism—or at least they don't call it socialism. This is why it's been difficult for the average parent to trace down what's been done—and is being done—to his youngsters. The technique used in these books is to slyly and slickly instill in the student a dislike, even disrespect for American history, traditions and way of business. This may be done deliberately in many cases; unconsciously in others, by authors who are themselves products of the same kind of teaching. But the net result is to instill in the student a tolerance, even a love for having his life managed by some big fatherly government. They teach him that businessmen are mean, rapacious, grasping, greedy, while politicians and labor leaders are kindly humane always thinking about the rights of the downtrodden and the poor.

There's space to give only a few examples, but I assure you they are not exceptions. On the contrary, they barely indicate the kind of "information" your children are getting from a majority a great majority of the textbooks used in our public schools today.

Here's one, widely used in high schools, which blames business management for labor violence in strikes. Now, mind you, this book doesn't tell the student that there are times when management is to blame and other times when labor leaders are to blame for violence in strikes. According to this text, management is always to blame.

It is no surprise, therefore, to find that this book also expounds the wonders of government ownership and management of electric power—with not a word about the money the government loses when it runs power plants, money it must collect from all taxpayers. Then, to be sure the lesson is pounded home, this book sends the student for additional recommended reading to a whole brace of communist and pro-communist authors. Even on a subject like the tariff this book gives the student a completely one-sided picture, illustrated with cartoons, which leaves him with the notion that all tariffs are wicked.

Here's another high-school textbook which plugs for socialized medicine. It does not call it that, of course, but it tells the student how people in other countries get "free" medical service from the government. It omits completely the story of the ever - rising costs to the taxpayers in those countries, and the abuses and poor quality of the service. In its effort to get over this pet plank in the modern socialist's platform — socialized medicine — this textbook even commits a gross inaccuracy. It says that public opinion polls seem to indicate that the American people want, impliedly, the government to run their medical services. At the time this book was written, there had been no general poll taken on this subject. But the student is left with the idea that everybody is for socialized medicine.

These are only a few examples which could be multiplied endlessly. But these textbooks are one of the chief reasons why we are having such a difficult time getting our badly battered constitutional, free-enterprise republic back into its American pattern—several generations of young Americans have been spoonfed on this left-wing claptrap and no longer have any idea what the American Republic means.

The SNAPSHOT GUILD

In years to come, snapshots like this may more effectively arouse pleasant memories than a picture of the completed costume.

Start Your Picture Stories at the Beginning

I AM sure that we all miss many pictures we'd enjoy having simply because we don't start our snapshot stories at the beginning. We wait until the big day, the big occasion, the climactic moment to start snapping pictures.

If we stop to think about it for a moment, we all know that half of the pleasure, thrill, fun, satisfaction in any important event is getting ready for it. The days of anticipation are wonderful. And they include plenty of good snapshot material. If we take pictures throughout them, we will truly have a picture record of the big event, whether it be a wedding, graduation, vacation trip, or what.

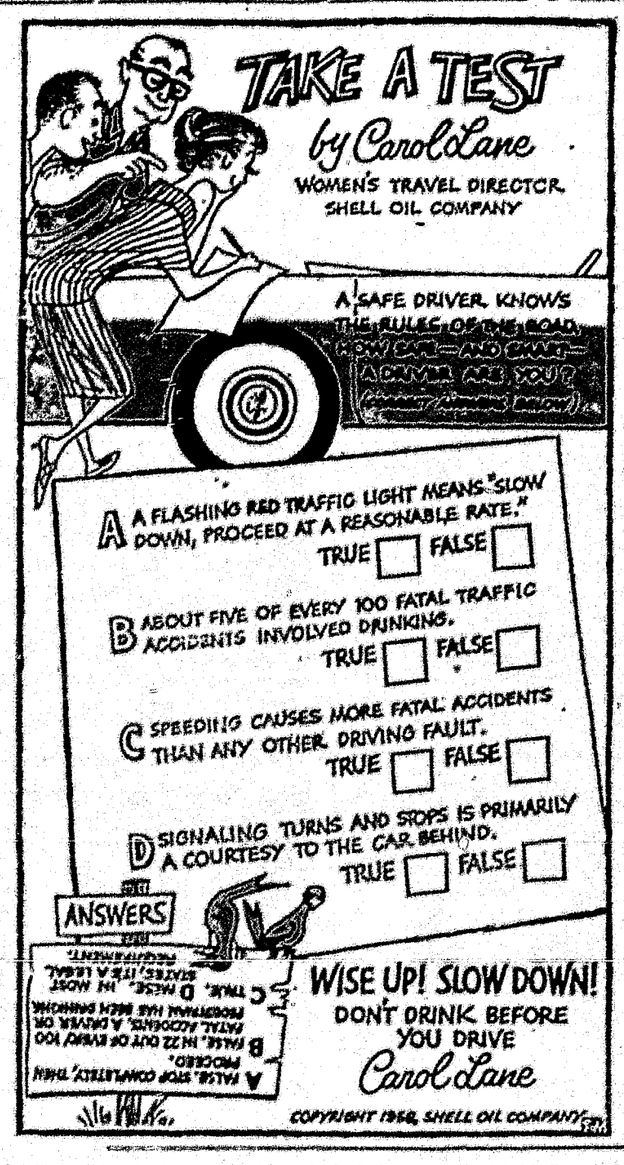
For example, look at the picture above. It is a wise father that takes a picture like that when preparations are underway for his small daughter's debut as the star of the dancing class recital. Of course, he'll take pictures on the day of the recital, when the dress is complete and the big moment is at hand. But pictures like this, with the costume under construction and young lady standing for a fitting with patience and obvious pleasure, will be a good build-up to the final shots.

Single snapshots that tell a story are always good album material. But even better, are a series of snapshots on one subject, with each telling its own little story, and contributing a chapter to the big story.

Such pictures don't have to be all indoor snapshots, or all outdoors. With flash on camera you can follow the story wherever it is happening. The dance recital for which this little girl is preparing might be an outdoor affair, but activity like this is so obviously an indoor one, that it wouldn't look right to move the little girl out into the sun for the shot.

When something big is coming up for any member of the family, don't record just the actual occasion. Take advantage of the opportunity to shoot a picture story of the preparations.

—John Van Guilder



Conservation Farming In Oxford County

By Lyman W. Jacobsen

The big job of reclaiming and reforesting the burned area in Southern Oxford County was aided recently by spraying hardwood weeds with a helicopter. The machine was piloted by W. Barufaldi of Norwood, Mass. The job of spraying is financed partly under the soil bank program. The Federal Government pays forty per cent. The State of Maine pays forty per cent. The land owner pays the remaining twenty per cent.

The spray kills hard wood weeds. This allows new planting to get off to a better start and releases existing plantings from competition for immediate moisture and fertility. In the all but barren burned land.

Continued spraying depends on land owner interest. All work is done under Maine State Forest Supervision. Information on spraying may be obtained from Clifford Swenson, Service Forester, South Paris, or Norman H. Gray, Oxford County Soil Conservation District Supervisor, Fryeburg, Maine.

Costs of spraying runs about $40.00 per acre. This means that the land owner pays only $4.80 per acre. This is a bargain. The District Supervisors hope that many land owners will take advantage of the chance to hurry up growing of another crop of timber on the burned land of Southern Oxford County.

Land owners who sprayed recently include R. C. Dunn & Son, 100 acres, Fred Walker, 30 acres, of Brownfield. Walter Twitchell, of Hiram, 30 acres. Those in Fryeburg include John LaFrance, 30 acres, Raymond LaCasce, 60 acres, and Roger Willette, 20 acres.

The Supervisors of the Oxford County Soil Conservation District also sprayed 80 acres of the District lot in Brownfield.

MAGALLOWAY

— Mrs. Bessie Harvey, Corres. —

The state election was held in the Assessors room in the Town Hall and opened at 10 a. m. Monday with Archie Bennett and Letana Enman as ballot clerks. Twenty-five of the fifty voters cast ballots. The election closed at 7 p. m.

Mrs. Dorothy Campbell of Errol is teaching the Magalloway school and Mrs. Gwen Littlehale of Wilson's Mills the Wilson's Mills one.

The Misses Bette and Brenda Linnell with their brother, Claude 3rd, are attending school at Twitchell also Miss Judy Griffin and Maurice Bennett.

Stanley West, Stephen Cooper and Miss Leslie Olson are at Berlin high school also Ronnie Griffin at Bridgton Academy.

The six-year-old son of Warren Olson was brought home from the Hanover Hospital last week. Randall was badly injured some time ago by falling from a tractor into a side delivery rake. He is unable to walk but can creep a little.

While Mr and Mrs George Stranger and son, Joey, stayed with Fred Bennett a week they took him to Berlin and to Bethel to call on Mr. and Mrs. Donald Fraser and sons.

Mr. and Mrs. Hazen Wilson of Tilton, N. H., recently celebrated their 50th wedding anniversary. All of their eight children were there besides grandchildren and other relatives. Mr Wilson is a former resident of Magalloway.

Larry Bragg leaves for Orono Tuesday where he will attend the University.

A baby shower was given Mrs Gail Girardin Friday night at the home of Mrs. Clara Olson. She had many nice gifts and a nice lunch was served.

Church services were held in Errol, Sunday at 2 p. m. and Mr. and Mrs. Russell left immediately afterward for Hartford, Conn., where he will attend school.

MAN'S RECIPE

THE PEARSON'S RAISIN PIE

We cannot live on Olympian heights all the time. We need contrast to make life bearable—and interesting. The fact that I have not succeeded in crossing asparagus on celery so the latter may be eaten as noiselessly as the former does not discourage me. Chromocomes and genes are tricky gremlins. I shall keep trying to achieve this horticultural phenomenon.

I put pies such as apples, blueberry and rhubarb at the top of my list, but every once in a while I get a hankering for a raisin pie. Blanche experimented on today's combination until she hit this formula. It rates an A with me. It is juicy, tangy, and flavorful. I like it just a whiffle cooler than room temperature, which means a little care in timing when you take it from the refrigerator.

Use two cups seeded raisins, one cup sugar one and a ¼ cup water, five teaspoons cornstarch, two tablespoons lemon juice, three tablespoons butter or margarine, pastry crusts.

Cook the two cups of raisins and the sugar in the cup of water until they boil. Add the cornstarch mixed with a little water and cook for five minutes.

Remove from heat after five minutes. Stir in the lemon juice and butter or margarine. Pour the mixture into an unbaked crust.

Cover with top crust; rivet the edges together, and puncture a few holes through which the steam can escape. Bake at about 400 for about 30 minutes or until done.

Football Under Way

Head Coach Robert Scott with a large squad of 61 and only a week's practice looks forward to only a fair season but says prospects look bright for the future and that could be only another year away. Of the 61 candidates 24 are freshmen. This year's team will have very little experienced depth with the quarterback and center positions the greatest headache. Coach Scott will have his usual assistants Joe Roderick and Paul Kalley with the addition of a new man in Steve Jacobs.

Regulars returning from last year are Capt. Al Summer (FB), Eric Wight (T), Larry Cummings and Steve Karpowich (ends). Other lettermen returning are Doug Rice and Fred Dallinger in the backfield and linemen Gary Aluisy, Mike Hathaway, Steve Watson, and Peter Karpowich.

Last year's JV's furnish Ken Bennett, Jeff Hutchins, John Luke, Dave Marsh, Don Rice, Bob Weston and Ben White as backfield aspirants. Linemen are Jim Bartlett, Bill Call, Newt Ferris, Dick Graves, John Kelley, Dave Myers, George Morse John Todd, and Dick York.

MOTOR MAIDS

How To Cut Accidents 50%

By Jeanne Smith, Dodge Safety Consultant

HERE'S ANOTHER project for women's organizations interested in promoting traffic safety in their community or state.

Miss Smith

The President's Committee for Traffic Safety has termed improvement of driver licensing standards as a prime target for action by women's

On a community level women's groups here urged to campaign for the following programs: Driver education courses as a prerequisite to licensure; more rigid physical examinations, driving tests and psychological tests to determine basic judgment and attitude; use of suspension and revocation authority by motor vehicle administrators that repeat violators will be taken off the highway, and an adequate number of personnel to administer examinations and driver improvement courses.

About one-third of all licensed drivers have no business behind the wheel of a car, according to Paul Mason, president of the American Association of Motor Vehicle Administrators.

"For instance," he says, "we license drivers who don't know how to react in an emergency. We don't weed out completely the 1,000,000 people subject to epileptic seizures, the 2,000,000 with diabetes or the eight percent of the population with heart disease. We even grant licenses to people who can't read road signs!

"Public apathy and short-sighted legislation," claims Mason, "have not permitted state motor vehicle administrators to match examination techniques with today's complexities of driving.

"I could almost guarantee a 50 percent reduction in traffic accidents if the public would give us approval to get as tough as we should be in issuing driving licenses."
